POMP TO MARK DRAFT LOTTERY TUESDAY AT 12

Brief Radio Address By President To Start National Ceremony

BANDS PLAY, FLAGS WAVE

Planes To Roar Overhead As Hour Arrives For Capsule Drawing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28—The National Draft Lottery will be held on schedule in Washington tomorrow amid dramatic scenes that will rival the pomp and ceremony of a presidential inauguration or a national political convention.

There will be no postponement of the drawing, according to announcement today by draft officials.

Fears that some local boards in scattered sections of the country may not complete numbering of cards of potential conscripts in time only strengthened the determination of officials in Washington to hold the colorful lottery on schedule.

"Local boards have got to be ready, even if they have to work all night tonight," officials declared.

The lottery itself, the first peacetime event of its kind in the nation's 164-year history, will be staged in the government-owned departmental auditorium on historic Constitution Avenue.

To Start at Noon

It will start at high noon with a brief radio address by President Roosevelt. The first number in the drawing, in which 17,000,000 American men hold tickets, will be drawn by Secretary of War Stimson. He will be blindfolded.

However, the band playing and flag waving will start in advance of the appointed hour. More than 500 uniformed veterans of previous wars will form a guard of honor outside the auditorium. Four or five hundred flags of the United States will be carried by the honor guard and held in salute on the steps of the marble hall while dignitaries, led by President Roosevelt, enter the building for the drawing.

While the actual drawing starts inside the auditorium, planes of the U. S. army will roar overhead and dip in salute to pay tribute

115 NAMES ADDED TO LIST OF COUNTY REGISTRANTS

Local draft board employees Monday were preparing supplemental lists of registrants and their serial numbers, as 115 additional selective service cards from registrants outside the county arrived at the local office. Additional cards received since the original list of 2,613 was posted brings the total number for the county to over 2,800. Emmitt Crist, local draft board chairman, said.

Members of the draft board will meet at the court house Thursday at 8 p. m. Lists of the county's registrants and their order numbers will be started at the meeting. Chairman Crist said, providing the list has been received from state headquarters.

BRITAIN TO GIVE HELP TO GREECE

Pledge To Be Carried Out; Arrangements For Aid Made

LONDON, Oct. 28—Britain will honor her pledge to guarantee Greece against aggression if Greece is attacked and resists, it was announced officially in London today.

The British pledge to Greece, as announced by then Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain on April 17, 1939, stated:

"In the event of any action being taken which clearly threatened the independence of Greece, and if the Greek government consented to the aid of the British government."

598 SAVED FROM LOST SHIP, SAYS BRITISH REPORT

LONDON, Oct. 28—Loss of the Canadian Pacific luxury liner Empress of Britain "as a result of action by enemy aircraft" was officially admitted by the British government today.

Out of the 643 persons aboard, 598 already have been rescued, the announcement said.

The admiralty and the war office in a joint communiqué conceded that the vessel had been sunk.

The 42,348-ton vessel, which carried King George and Queen Elizabeth of England home after their tour of Canada and the United States last year, was set afire by aerial bombs, the announcement said. Salvage operations were begun immediately.

APPEALS COURT JUDGES TO SIT HERE, BUT NO CASES ARE SCHEDULED

No cases will be ready for the Court of Appeals when it meets in Pickaway County, Wednesday, at 10 a. m., Clerk of Courts Arthur Wilder announced Monday.

Although three cases have been appealed and scheduled for hearing, briefs in none of the cases has been submitted and court action will be postponed until later, Clerk Wilder pointed out.

The cases scheduled to be heard include the litigation between the Crites Oil Company and the Ralston Purina Company involving easement rights, the $13,000 damage suit of William F. McCrady against the Benedict Transportation Company whose truck allegedly was responsible for the death of his son John, March 13, 1936, and the school controversy between the Muhlenberg Township board of education and the Pickaway County board, involving the right of the county board to create a new school district from the combined Muhlenberg and Monroe districts.

PRESIDENT ACTS TO SAFEGUARD U. S. INTERESTS

Roosevelt Says Action By Italy May Be Forerunner Of General Outbreak

CASH, CREDITS FROZEN

Roosevelt, Kennedy Talk Of Britain's Chances; Dim Outlook Reported

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28—Fear was expressed on behalf of President Roosevelt today that the move of Italy against Greece "may not be a complete action, but may be a preliminary move to a more serious situation—a situation affecting the whole Balkan picture."

Mr. Roosevelt moved swiftly to protect American interests this morning on being advised of the latest European explosion.

A telephone wire was strung into his private car as soon as he reached Newark and he immediately put a call to Secretary of State Hull in Washington.

The President learned that the State Department at that hour had not been officially advised of the outbreak of Italian-Greek hostilities.

"The State Department was lacking official confirmation of the newspaper reports," White House Secretary Stephen T. Early reported. "The President spoke to Hull about preparing the necessary neutrality proclamations and also instructed him to have Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau look into the freezing of cash and credits."

Americans will be forbidden to travel in Greek ships; U. S. ports will be closed to Greek submarines, and all Americans will be adjured to neutrality in the war between the two countries.

Americans Have Flown

Virtually all Americans already have left Greece in the general exodus of U. S. nationals from southeastern Europe.

President Roosevelt, before leaving Washington for New York last night, listened to a four-hour report from Joseph P. Kennedy, U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, which sources close to the envoy understood was deeply tinged with pessimism over London's outlook for victory. Kennedy, however, withheld his views from the press.

Meanwhile, the ticking cable keys in the State Department's code room told a story of increased activity.

Jemima Dungan Dies At 68; Rites To Be Tuesday

Ill for the last several years, Miss Jemima Dungan, 68, a widely known lifelong resident of Circleville and Pickaway County, died Saturday at 5:20 p. m. in the Athens State Hospital where she had been a patient for the last two weeks.

Private funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Albaugh Co. chapel, the Rev. Fr. Francis Connor, acting pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, officiating. Burial, also to be private, will be in the family lot in Forest Cemetery. Pall bearers will include

George Roth, Garrett Claypool, Robert Immell, Dr. E. S. Shane, Bryan Custer, Forrest Short, Charles Radcliff, Ray W. Davis, James G. Dunton and Ward H. Peck.

Friends may call at the Albaugh Chapel between 7 and 9 p. m. Monday.

Miss Dungan, born November 22, 1871, in Wayne Township, a daughter of George and Harriet Blackstone Dungan, had been active in Pickaway County during her lifetime. She taught for many years in the schools of the district, retiring some years ago. She was active in Democratic politics, serving as state central committee woman from the 11th Ohio district for several terms. One of the highlights of her political activity came in 1932 when she attended the party convention in Chicago when President Roosevelt was nominated for his first term. During this convention Miss Dungan was a breakfast guest of Mr. and Mrs. Al Smith, and enjoyed a 30-minute interview with the late Mayor Cermak of Chicago.

In 1937, Miss Dungan was the object of an extortion plot in which a neighbor, William Madden, who is now serving time in a federal prison, attempted to collect $1,500 from her on threat of bodily harm. Miss Dungan became ill shortly after this incident and gradually lost her health.

Axis Partners Meet In Vital Discussion

ROME, Oct. 28—"Urgent measures have been taken against Greece" by Italy, it was announced officially today after a Fascist ultimatum to the Greek government failed to elicit a response.

Announcement of hostilities was made as Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler held a lengthy conference at Florence, discussing still further aspects of the Axis campaign for a "new order" in Europe.

In contrast to the restrained and formal wording of the official Italian announcement regarding action against Greece, an unofficial but nevertheless authoritative statement said:

"Our boys crossed the line this morning."

(Editor's Note: This evidently meant an Italian invasion of Greece from Albania, such as was announced earlier by the Greek government.)

As officially described by the Italian government in a formal communiqué, the Italo-Greek situation is as follows:

"The last incidents and provocations, especially on the frontier, aggravated Italo-Greek political relations and Italy was forced to adopt urgent measures to avoid further peril."

Intrigues Multiply

"English intrigues were multiplied in Athens during the last few days and also in the territorial waters of Greece, completely undermining the liberty of Greece, which remained supine and was no longer a free country."

"Extent of the measures taken will be revealed in a communiqué today or tomorrow."

BRITISH PLANES POUR BOMBS ON GERMAN REGIONS

LONDON, Oct. 28—While Nazi attacks on London and other parts of Britain slackened, the RAF during the night once more carried the war into Germany with a series of bombing assaults, the Air Ministry announced today.

"RAF bombers last night attacked communications in western Germany, oil targets in central and northern Germany and two invasion ports," the ministry said. Earlier it was revealed that British planes had carried out a pulverizing 90-minute raid on key Berlin objectives along with attacks on scores of other Nazi war centers.

Heavy bombs were said to have left masses of flames at Berlin's Moabit power station, while another large fire devoured an aircraft motor factory in a northwestern Berlin suburb.

Londoners, meanwhile, were amazed by the relative weakness of the night raids on the British capital.

Only a few high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped on the city, causing slight damage and a few casualties.

Heavier attacks, however, were delivered against points along the east coast, the Merseyside region, the Midlands and one east Anglian town, where bombs were reported dropped indiscriminately.

FIST FIGHTS DEVELOP AT OHIO STRIKE SCENE

YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 28—Fist fights broke out today at the struck Republic Rubber division of the Lee Tire and Rubber Co., when 20 men tried to break through a picket line patrolled by 140 members of Local 102, United Rubber Workers of America.

D. F. Doran, local president, said most of the company's plants, which employ 700, are on strike because "the company has continued to postpone negotiations with the union although the NLRB certified the local as the bargaining agent for workers on July 20."

MURDER CHARGED

CINCINNATI, Oct. 28—An indictment charging first degree murder was returned today by a grand jury against 27-year-old Guy Willie Ponder, in connection with the knife-slitting last Friday of 10-year-old Clarence Stevens, Cincinnati school boy.

European Bulletins

SOFIA — The Bulgarian Sobranje (parliament) was summoned for an emergency session this afternoon.

LONDON—An Exchange Telegraph (British) news agency dispatch from Istanbul charged today that French-mandated Syria is under a "reign of terror." The dispatch said the German gestapo (secret police) are making sweeping arrests and that many leading Syrians are fleeing to Bagdad.

VICHY — Amid mounting indications that France will draw still closer to the axis, Pierre Laval, vice-premier of the Petain government and long advocate of German collaboration, today was named French foreign minister. Laval, who instigated the recent talks with Chancellor Hitler in Paris, replaces Paul Baudouin, who has been relegated to the post of secretary of the president of the French council.

BELGRADE — The Yugoslavian foreign office in a formal statement declared today that expansion of the war to Greece is "viewed with regret." The impression prevailed in Belgrade that Yugoslavia will remain neutral as long as she is not herself attacked.

NEW YORK—The Italian war on Greece brought a mild reaction in the stock market at the opening today, but selling was light and declines were limited to minor fractions. Allied chemical was a lone exception, tumbling three points to 168 on a sale of 300 shares. Bethlehem, which had started 1/4 lower, increased its loss to a point within a few sales.

WASHINGTON — American military experts doubted today that Greece could long make any "effective" resistance against the Italian attack. They pictured the Grecian defiance of Mussolini as a tactical step taken largely in the interest of friendly Great Britain.

HORSE RACING FRAUD PROBED ON WEST COAST

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28—District attorneys of three California counties awaited the go signal today from Chairman Jerry Giesler of the State Horse Racing Board to take criminal action in the alleged $1,000,000 horse racing fraud uncovered by the state board.

Southern California authorities announced action will be taken as soon as Giesler releases copies of testimony given by seven jockeys at Bay Meadows Saturday in which they allegedly confessed pulling races at California's four tracks—Hollywood Park, Del Mar, Tanforan and Bay Meadows.

The seven were said to have told the board that more than 100 horse races within the last two years had been pulled at the tracks for payoffs ranging from $200 to $400 per race.

It was estimated that California bettors had been bilked of more than $1,000,000 by the ring and veteran track followers described the expose the most sensational since the disclosure of a similar fraud in Kentucky ten years ago.

FOUR CONSIDERED FOR INDIAN CHIEF'S POST

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28—Selection of a new manager for the Cleveland Indians appeared to lie between four candidates as the Board of Directors met today.

Although Manager Oscar Vitt still is to be given consideration, it was not likely that the board would offer him a new contract. Bucky Harris, Rogers Hornsby, Luke Sewell, present coach, and Roger Peckinpaugh, were being considered, it was understood.

Greeks Give Opposition With Aircraft Sent By Britain; Premier Metaxas Calls For Defense Of Country

BUDAPEST, Oct. 28—Attacking by land and air, Italian forces shelled and bombed the Greek cities of Florina, Kastoria and Piraeus today as Premier Mussolini's invading troops were reported to have penetrated deep into Greek territory from several points in Albania.

Florina and Kastoria were shelled by heavy artillery emplaced along the Greco-Albania frontier while Piraeus, the port of Athens, was bombed from the skies.

A total of 200,000 Italian soldiers was sent into action against Greece, Budapest reports said, and fear mounted that the conflict would spread throughout the Balkans. Air raid precautions were ordered throughout Bulgaria.

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 28—The Greek fleet has been assembled at Salonika to defend the nation's most strategic harbor from Italian invasion, it was learned in Ankara tonight.

LONDON, Oct. 28—Italian warplanes have bombed the Greek airdrome at Athens, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens said today.

ROME, Oct. 28—The Greek government "failed to respond to an Italian ultimative action," it was stated officially in Rome today.

BELGRADE, Oct. 28—A battle between Greek and Italian warships near Corfu was reported in advices reaching Belgrade today. The naval action began, these reports stated, when Italian forces attempted to occupy the strategic island of Corfu.

ATHENS, Oct. 28—Using planes supplied by Britain under a long-standing agreement, Greek fliers took to the air today to repel an aerial invasion by Fascist Italy. A violent battle took place over the Corinth Canal connecting Peloponessus with the Greek mainland when Italian planes attempted to reach and bomb the bridge linking the two areas.

Early reports in Athens indicated that the Greek airmen scored at least some successes in their first baptism of fire in Europe's spreading war.

Fascist planes also bombed Patras, on the northern shore of the Peloponessus, damaging the harbor, Palace of Justice, and telegraph office. Four persons were killed and 17 injured.

Attack Halted

Anti-aircraft fire and attacks by 15 Greek fighter planes were credited with driving Italian bombers away from Tatoi airdrome, outside Athens.

Attacks on the Corinthian peninsula and Eleusis also were reported frustrated.

Greek authorities declared an emergency "state of siege" throughout the country. Mobilization of the civilian population on a war scale was ordered, and the governor of Athens warned the people to prepare for possible restrictions on food and water supplies.

Hostilities between Greece and Italy opened at dawn as the Athens government rejected a Fascist ultimatum to hand over Greek territory for duration of the European war.

In his second proclamation of the day, Premier John Metaxas declared:

"Let the entire nation stand and fight for your country, your wives, (Continued on Page Two)"

your children and for everything you hold sacred.

"The battle is now upon us all." At 9:30 a. m. (2:30 a. m. EST) an air raid alarm sounded in Athens, indicating an Italian aerial attack on the capital.

Protracted anti-aircraft fire was heard.

City Enthusiastic
But everywhere in the city there were scenes of great enthusiasm as radios broadcast and newspapers published the rallying messages of Premier Metaxas and King George II.

Soldiers and police patrolled the streets, all taxicabs were requisitioned and newspapers rushed out one special edition after another, giving the successive proclamations and mobilization details.

The National Youth organization placed itself at the disposal of the government and sent this message to the nation:

"As one man we are throwing ourselves into the fight, knowing that nothing else counts when defense of our altars, our hearths and the high destiny of our country is concerned. We have one goal—total victory."

King George drove through the streets of Athens and was given a tremendous ovation as the nation went to war.

"A state of war went into effect as Italian forces, according to an official statement, opened hostilities with an attack on Greece at 5:30 a. m. (10:30 p. m. EST, Sunday), half an hour before the Italian ultimatum expired at 6 a. m.

Metaxas made his statement after the Greek government turned down the Italian ultimatum, which contained a three-hour time limit.

As the fighting began—spreading the European war into the Balkan region and creating grave dangers that it will extend still further—King George of Greece issued a dramatic proclamation. It said:

"The premier has informed you of conditions under which we are obliged to fight Italy, which made demands against the integrity of Greece."

"At this moment we are sure that all Greeks will do their duty to the end, as it is written in the glorious history of Greece that the whole nation is ready to fight as one man until the final victory."

The proclamation by Metaxas to which the monarch referred stated:

"Italy, not recognizing the Greeks as free, demanded the surrender of sections of our national territory."

"I replied that I considered the demand and the method by which it was made as a declaration of war."

"Greeks! We shall now prove whether we are worthy of our ancestors and the liberty our forefathers secured for us."

"Now . . . to battle!"

Mobilization Ordered
An official Greek mobilization decree, rushed into effect early in the morning, put the nation on a complete war footing and ordered all reserve officers and men to return to the colors today.

It was reported authoritatively in the Greek capital that Italy in its ultimatum demanded Fascist military occupation of strategic points in Greece for duration of the war.

The Italian minister in Athens added verbally, in the event the ultimatum were rejected, Italian forces would commence their attack at 6 a. m.

Metaxas immediately rejected the demands, it was stated, and the Italian assault began at 5:30 a. m.

(Editor's Note: Reports from Sofia, Bulgarian capital, stated it was "confirmed" there that fighting already was in progress along the Albanian-Greek frontier, where Italian troops have been massed for weeks.

A few minutes before Metaxas announced that Greece would "fight to the death," King George II declared in a statement to his people that Greece was forced to fight "an Italy seeking to destroy our independence."

Metaxas informed the Italian minister, Emanuele Grazzi, who presented the Fascist ultimatum, that the Greek government regarded the ultimatum as a declaration of war.

Italy's demands were not revealed in Athens, but a black-out was imposed on the capital an hour and 10 minutes before the ultimatum expired.

Even at that hour the movements of Greek military officers made it evident that the Greek

NO. 2 NAZI BUND MEMBER LOSES U. S. CITIZENSHIP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The Supreme Court today upheld action of lower federal courts in cancelling citizenship of Herman Max Schwinn of Los Angeles, former western leader of the German-American Bund. The high court granted Schwinn's petition for review and then affirmed the judgment.

The supreme court based its decision on the ground that the certificate of citizenship was illegally obtained.

The government charged Schwinn with fraud on the ground that two witnesses, who swore to his residence in the country for five years, had known him less than that time.

Schwinn was mentioned scores of times during the Dies committee's investigation of the German American Bund, particularly in connection with its west coast activities. When Fritz Kuhn, the now-jailed national leader of the Bund was in his hey-day, Schwinn was the No. 2 Bundist in America.

to the 17,000,000 men between the ages of 21 and 36 who registered under the conscription law October 16—men now waiting for the lottery to determine what order they will be mustered into the army. Army bands also will turn out to add color to the ceremony.

The nation is preparing to have 1,000,000 men in army training by next June. Over the next four years, it will train 3,600,000 others. It will keep on training men until this country has an army large enough to repel any attack on the Western Hemisphere.

In another 20 days, and just 13 days after the national elections next month, the first 30,000 of the 17,000,000 registrants will be in army camps starting their year's compulsory military training.

The order in which they will go will depend to a large extent on the lottery tomorrow.

3,500 Capsules Ready

When the drawing starts, there will be some 3,500 opaque capsules in a goldfish bowl on the stage in the departmental auditorium. Each capsule will contain a number. On the World War, the first number drawn was 258.

If, by chance, the first number drawn tomorrow should be 258 it would mean that every man in the nation who has been assigned that serial number by his local draft board would be given a questionnaire to answer. And, if he is single and fit for service, in all likelihood he would be among the first to be inducted into the army.

sidered it vital to resist with their national forces. His Majesty's Government would feel themselves bound to lend the Greek government all the support in their power."

Prior to the official announcement, the war cabinet of Prime Minister Winston Churchill met to consider a request for aid from Greece.

Even while this meeting was still sitting, diplomatic quarters made it clear that Britain had "every intention" of honoring its pledge to the Greeks.

(Editor's Note: An official Greek announcement stated that Greek forces already are resisting the Italian attack.)
It was understood that details of British assistance to Greece already have been worked out by the British and Greek governments.

With hostilities already under way the Greek government rushed an appeal to Britain for "certain assistance," according to an official British statement.

The plea was sent to London after King George of Greece at Athens told his people that Greece was forced to fight "an Italy seeking to destroy our independence."

The message to London said the Greek government regarded the Italian ultimatum which expired at 6 a. m. (11 p. m. Sunday EST) as a declaration of war.

Greek circles in London declared the latest Italian move already had been envisaged by the general staff of the Greek army and that it was believed plans already had been made under which Greece would receive naval, land and aerial help from Britain.

All Greek ports, these quarters said, are ready to receive British troops and planes.

Greek quarters also commented that the latest development also reveals the motive for axis anxiety to obtain the use of French warships and naval bases for the purpose of harassing British reinforcements in the Mediterranean.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. Horticulturist

QUESTION: What information do you have on the new tree roses?
ANSWER: Tree roses are not new, in fact they have been grown for a great many years. They are not particularly satisfactory for the average gardener in Ohio for the reason that, although the stock, or tree part, is hardy, the hybrid teas or other roses that are budded to the top are completely exposed to the elements and consequently are difficult to protect over winter.

The tops may be heavily wrapped in moss and burlap or the plants may be dug up and the tops buried over winter.

QUESTION: One variety of mimosa is listed as being hardy as far north as New York. Can it be grown in central Ohio? E. C. W., Springfield.

ANSWER: The only one of this group of plants that can be grown here in Ohio is the Albizzia julibrissin rosea, sometimes called mother-in-law's tongue tree. Even so, in severe weather like we had last winter, many of these were killed to the ground, but are coming up from the roots. It is a very lovely tree with lavender-pink flowers similar to the meadow rue during the latter part of the summer.

QUESTION: Could you tell me if a space 15 by 25 feet between the house and the garage is too large to use as a patio garden? This space is always without grass because of dense shade. G. S. Alpha.

ANSWER: There is no reason why you could not develop a very charming garden in such a spot by paving with second-hand common brick or with flat rock; by using such ground covers as English ivy, wintercreeper, or periwinkle, that would stand the shade; by using such evergreens as Hemlock, Japanese yew, Mahonia, and boxwood; and you also could have a certain number of flowers, using tuberous rooted begonias and the common house plant called Impatiens, or sultana. There are also many perennials which you could grow under these conditions.

QUESTION: Is there a peat moss that is black and quite fine? I bought this for peat moss and do not know what it is. Water does not seem to penetrate it. Should it be left around the flowers and shrubbery or would the earth beneath become too dry? B. S., Jamestown.

ANSWER: From your description, I believe someone has sold you some common muck which has been dried and sold as peat moss. This material, in its present degree of decomposition, is of relatively little value as a mulch and is not nearly as useful as peat for loosening soil. I would suggest that you spade the mulch that you have now into the soil; it will do no harm.

QUESTION: How should soil be treated after a bed of tulips has shown the fire disease? Should the bulbs be thrown away? A. McG., Xenia.

ANSWER: If your tulips really have fire disease, or botrytis blight, there is absolutely nothing you can do but burn them up. You will also find that this disease is carried in the soil. Even removal of the top foot of soil will not entirely make it safe to replant tulips in the same area.

QUESTION: When is the best time to set out roses? D. P., Jamestown.

ANSWER: Our rose specialists recommend roses be planted during the last two weeks in November, by which time they have matured sufficiently so that they can be dug. After planting the roses, mound them immediately with six to eight inches of soil and cut the tops off to this mound.

QUESTION: How can dahlias roots be stored to keep them from drying up? J. B. C., Selma.

ANSWER: If your cellar is so warm that your dahlias roots are shriveling, I suggest you store them in cardboard cartons, packed

FIVE COLUMBUS HUNTERS FINED FOR VIOLATIONS

Two Fail To Show Their Licenses, Others Using Rifles For Ducks

ALL GO BEFORE MAYOR

Population Of County Jail Goes To 40, Highest For Present Year

Five Columbus hunters were arrested Saturday by Conservation Officer Clarence Francis for violating game laws.

Henry Davis, 234 Jefferson Avenue, and Robert White, 153 North 17th Street, were arrested when hunting near South Bloomfield for failure to have hunting licenses or exhibit tags on their backs. Both were fined $25 and costs and committed to County Jail. Davis later paid his fine and was released.

Three were arrested for hunting ducks on the Scioto River near the Pickaway-Franklin County line. They were using rifles. Each was fined $10 and costs, with five dollars suspended by Mayor William Cady. All three paid and were released. They gave their names as William Pinkerman, 1935 Wager Street; G. E. Shively, 185½ Parsons Avenue and Dale Rahm, 549 West Third Avenue.

Officer Francis pointed out that ducks may not be hunted with rifles or with shotguns larger than 10 gauge.

John Stiverson and Ross Graham, both of Lancaster, cited Friday night for taking gasoline from the automobile of Ronald McKenzie, were fined $50 and costs each and committed to County Jail Saturday night.

Those committed Saturday brought the total number in County Jail to 40, Sheriff Charles Radcliff said, the largest number that has occupied the jail at any one time this year.

Robert McCafferty, 205 Pierce Avenue, Lancaster, was arrested at 2:35 a. m. Sunday for driving on North Court Street when intoxicated. Arresting officers George Green and Alva Shasteen reported that McCafferty was driving eighty miles an hour. A $100 bond for his release from City Jail was expected Monday.

F. D. R. ON VITAL TOUR IN GOTHAM

Boroughs Visited Prior To Speech Scheduled At 10 O'clock

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28 — President Roosevelt moved into New York City today to start a final six-day campaign swing which the Democratic high command confidently predicts will put the 114 electoral votes of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Ohio safely in the third term column on November 5.

Tonight, at 10 o'clock, in Madison Square Garden, Mr. Roosevelt will deliver the second of his series of addresses to correct what he terms "the deliberate falsifications" of his "Republican opponent, Wendell Wilkie. White House aides said the speech would be "as hot" as last Wednesday's effort in Philadelphia.

As a prelude to a day-long motor tour of New York City's five boroughs, the President routed his special train into Newark, N. J., so he might make still another bid for the New Jersey vote. Last Wednesday, he toured Camden.

At Newark, mayors of twelve northern New Jersey municipalities, headed by Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, were waiting to greet him. Fifteen minutes had been set aside in the President's crowded schedule for this ceremony, following which an inspection of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company plant at Kearny was in order. The presidential motor route to Staten Island then lay through such points as Newark, Elizabeth and Bayonne.

Thereafter began a kaleidoscopic swing of Manhattan's five boroughs which testified to the importance the Democrats attach to rolling up a huge majority in the city this year to offset the upstate Republican vote.

Scout Troops Gather Monday For Roll Call

Circleville and Pickaway County Scouting and Cubbing units will gather at their regular meeting places Monday night to participate in a nation-wide roll call for the strengthening of American democracy. Monday night's gesture will be open for local Scouts, and Scouts throughout the United States, a "program of action," with emergency service being stressed.

Featuring the event will be a special radio broadcast with prominent Scout alumni voicing their greetings to the 4,000 Scouts and Cubs of the Central Ohio Area Council.

The program will go on the air over station WHKC from 8 to 8:15. Troop leaders have been instructed to arrange for radio reception at their meeting places and incorporate it into their evening's activities in connection with the Roll Call.

Local Troops and Packs will be visited by Scout officials who will take charge of the roll call and inventory procedure at the various meeting places. Members of the Executive Board, Scout alumni, Council and District Officials and other Scouters have agreed to cooperate in the project.

The purpose of the survey is to discover the strength and weakness of each local Scouting unit in order that the Scout Movement generally will be in a better position to serve the nation at this particular time.

Other phases of the program of action which will be developed during the next few weeks include the organization of emergency service corps, membership round-up, increased leadership training, practice mobilization, renewed emphasis on camping and related items. It is not proposed to change the program of the Boy Scouts of America in any way, but to attempt to increase its effectiveness, according to Phil S. Bradford, Council president.

Following are the Scouters who will visit Scouting units in the Pickaway District Monday evening:

Rev. S. N. Root, Troop 85, Tarlton.
James I. Smith, Troop 86, Circleville.
Harold Costlow, Troop 146, New Holland.

The young men of the quartet have equally distinguished backgrounds: Dulio Pucci, tenor, won a contest in California sponsored by Warner Brothers Studios, was a scholarship student with the opera star Lola Fletcher, and has appeared in many concerts and operas; Ted Val Sloan, though born in Natchez, Mississippi, holds his musical degree from the University of Kansas, and has sung leading roles in presentations of the famous Westminster Choir in many parts of the United States, so that travel and new audiences are a familiar and welcome part of his life.

The well-balanced program of the quartet is noted for its originality, the sure attack of the artists, their dramatic ability and the quality of the individual voices.

SKYWRITER BOOKED

Fred Allen scheduled a skywriter on his Star Theatre program Oct. 23rd, and true to tradition, the skywriter's appearance went up in smoke.

He didn't go on the show because FDR had taken over the network so on Wednesday, Andy Stinis, who was slated to talk about his chirography in the sky will make the appearance he was supposed to have made October 23.

On that date, at 9 p. m. over CBS, Stinis will be the person you don't expect to meet. Al Goodman's orchestra will play "I've Got You Under My Skin" and "The Breeze and I." The Hugh Martin chorus will sing "You Can't Brush Me Off." Kenny Baker's Numbers are "Star Dust" and "Ferry Boat Serenade."

FIBBER MCGEE

Fibber McGee and Molly and the citizens of Wistful Vista will attend the Notre Dame-Army football game on the Fibber McGee and Molly program Tuesday, 9:30 p. m., over the NBC-Red network, with usual complications, from "Oldtimer" "Teeny" "Mrs. Upington" and "Gildersleeve." Billy Mills orchestra and the King's Men, vocal quartet will be featured.

MEEK REDECORATES

Agatha Meek finally persuades Mr. Meek to redecorate on the "Meet Mr. Meek" program Wednesday, 7:30 p. m. over the CBS network. Drexel Plush, decorator, is summoned to the Meek household and when he estimates the cost of decorating to be about $500 Meek agrees. While Plush is moving out the old furniture, Meek notices he's extra careful with Meek's favorite chair. Meek investigates and discovers his favorite chair is a valuable antique so he confronts Plush with his knowledge and the outcome of the business transaction which doesn't cost Meek a cent, proves hilariously funny. Frank Readick plays the title role, Mr. Meek, supported by Adelaide Klein as "Agatha," Doris Dudley as "Peppy" and Jack Smart as "Louie."

RADIO BRIEFS

Horace Heidt's Pot O' Gold orchestra will appear at Sweet's

Ballroom in Oakland, Calif., on November 2.

Starlets Betty Winkler and June Travis of Girl Alone are devoting the week mornings to reading for the students at Chicago's Institute for the Blind.

Alice Sherris Goodkin, heard on the dramatic portion of the Wayne King program, is directing a play at Northwestern U's night school.

Fred Allen's Star Theatre tenor, Kenny Baker, is scheduling Shreveport for a concert appearance on November 15.

Ford Rush has deserted all of his radio chores but two, the Grand Ole Opry and a kid's program, (the brainchild of his son, Ford, Jr.) since landing the job of station manager at WSM, Nashville, Tenn.

Bonnie Baker and Orrin Tucker are lining up a preacher.

Penny Singleton, star of CBS's Blondie series, is preparing to go latin in her next film for Columbia studios.

Nigel Bruce is doubling between NBC's Sherlock Holmes and RKO's "Play Girl."

Library Notes

NEW ADDITION TO THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Country Squire in the White House—By J. T. Flynn. "It is from the political base that this analysis of the character and career of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and the administration policies which have had their genesis primarily in that character and career, is made. It is of at least equal interest to those who have sympathized in general with the New Deal because they thought it represented a liberal movement, as to those who have mistrusted it from the start."

Trumpet in the Wilderness—By R. S. Harper. This is the story of a man who found himself, against his will, involved in America's struggle to establish herself as a nation; of Ann Sessions who met love and danger with the same light-hearted courage; above all it is the story of Commodore Perry and his great battle on Lake Erie. This is a memorable novel of the War of 1812.

As I Remember Him—By Hans Zinsner. The biography of a doctor and scientist who traveled wherever there was war and infection to fight as a man of his profession. He was in Serbia in 1914-15; with the American army in France, in Russia, Mexico, and China. The book is probably Mr. Zinsner's own autobiography.

Master-at-Arms, a romance—By Rafael Sabatini. Post-revolutionary France is the scene of a roistering yarn, written in the language of the times. Lured by the smile of his lady love, the valiant hero threw his fortunes in with the Royalist movement to regain lost estates and to restore the monarchy. The cause failed, but the romance won. Sabatini readers will like it.

Hill Octor—By Hubert Skidmore. York Allen returns to the Blue Ridge Mountains to practice medicine. He has to overcome native prejudice and superstition and combat the racketeering methods of timber interests. A realistic story with no love interest. Many men as well as high school people will enjoy it.

Old Time Herbs for Northern Gardens—By M. W. Kamm. A comprehensive volume showing a great amount of research into the origin and history of herbs, their appearance in literature and drama, their use in medicine and cookery. Although full of useful information, this is not a technical book, for the author explains simply and clearly the place and purpose of herbs in today's garden and has produced a readable volume as well as a work of reference.

You Can't Go Home Again—By Thomas Wolfe. George Webber's search for truth is continued in this sequel to The Web and The Rock. It is still obviously the torrential recollections of the author's own life during and after the boom of 1929.

No Other Man—By Alfred Noyes. Following the use of an "unknown weapon" too terrible to use except as a last resort most countries of the world became lands of the dead. By accident, however, Mark Adams, a young Englishman, and Evelyn Hamilton, an American girl, are spared to start a "brave new world". Each survived the catastrophe feeling as alone as Robinson Crusoe till the "footprint" in the sand appeared in the guise of a tiny, recently wound wristwatch discovered by Mark. Its tick-tick-tick was a cry to find the owner and seek for the living in a land of the dead.

New England: Indian Summer, 1865-1915—By Van Wyck Brooks. This sequel to the Flowering of New England presents the literary history of New England from 1865-1915. Having the same excellence in style and scholarship as the former book, it is a valuable interpretation of an important period.

EDWARD GLAZE, FORMER LOCAL RESIDENT, DIES

Edward Glaze, 75, a native of Circleville, died Sunday in St. Anthony's Hospital, Columbus, following an operation. A resident of Columbus for the last 28 years, he had been employed at several jewelry stores in the city, and for the last 12 years had operated a repair shop at his residence on 52 Chittenden Avenue.

He is survived by his widow Dora E., three grand-daughters, one great-granddaughter, a brother, John W. Glaze of Westfield, Mass., and a sister, Mrs. Harriet Teall, of Temperance, Michigan.

Funeral services and the Scottish Rite regnal ceremony will be held at 10 a. m. Wednesday in the D. Harvey Davis funeral home, with burial in Circleville.

Mr. Glaze had been ill for several months.

LIVING SPACE

IT seems strange to Americans to be told by the Nazi-controlled government of Norway that Norwegian immigrants in this country and elsewhere should return and find "living space" in that country.

Space to die, and not space to live, will be found today by free men in every country occupied by Hitler's steam-roller Nazis. The body might thrive in especially favored circumstances, but not the mind or soul.

It is unnecessary, however, to say this to our immigrant citizens from the Scandinavian peninsula and the other countries of western Europe. They know it only too well, and prefer to live in a land where they can breathe and think and hope and enjoy the fruits of their labors.

RURAL CARS

FARMERS, the statisticians report, use their automobiles mostly for business. They travel 64 business miles to 36 for recreational and social purposes. There's no question about the need and usefulness of a car on a farm, but it must be hard to arrive at such exact figures.

For example, when a farmer hitchhikes a small truck to the back of his car to go to the woods and bring a calf to the barn, it is obviously a business trip. But when he takes his small boy along it becomes also educational and recreational. When the farm mother drives to the village to take daughter to high school band practice and picks up 15 pounds of beef for the silo fillers the next day, the expedition is both a social and business affair.

One thing is plain. The farmer's car doesn't stand idle in the garage much of the time. It is an asset the whole family uses and enjoys, week-days and Sundays. The owner can hardly remember now the days when the city man's car frightened his horses into running away, or when he had to hitch up the team to haul the intruder out of a ditch.

OUR SHORTCOMING

WORD comes from Rome that the Fascists are very indignant at us Americans because we "brush aside the ideals of Fascism and Nazism without any attempt to understand or appreciate the Axis viewpoint."

That isn't true. Most of us have honestly tried to understand what those totalitarian governments are doing, and how and why. But always we run into so much killing and stealing and blackmailing and war-mongering and conspiring and browbeating, and other gangster

WORLD AT A GLANCE . . . . .

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

IF BOOMS could be guaranteed to go on booming indefinitely into the future, the latest forecast by the agriculture department's bureau of economics would be quite a cheerful prediction.

Between our defense program's demands for more and more industrial workers and our conscription of men for military training, it's the bureau's opinion that 1941 will see a reduction in the number of unemployed Americans by about 2,500,000. This sounds like a very moderate estimate. I'd have guessed that the figure would be larger than the one the bureau mentions. However, that's the one it does mention.

Anyway, it will be fine, at least temporarily, for those who, at present jobless, get back into well paying positions. Indeed, the bureau looks for wage boosts, though it admits that they may be partially offset by higher costs of living. As for the draftees? Well, I'd rather be even a draftee than on no pay roll whatever.

And, adds the bureau, in its annual outlook report, should world conditions become still more acute, "industrial activity would experience a yet greater increase."

NOT SO CHEERFUL

The report's a bit glum concerning the farmers. It hints at "a further slump in agricultural exports." I don't exactly understand why. I'd think that, with other folk so busy fighting, they'd have to buy more farm stuff from us than ever, to supplement their war-reduced domestic supplies. But I suppose the explanation is that they simply will have to cut down on their rations, not having enough left over, after their belated expenses, to foot the bill for a normal amount of imported edibles.

No matter, though. If our farmers find their export markets insufficient to absorb our agricultural surplusage, they can get into our thriving urban industries, or be conscripted, if they're young enough.

Things doubtless will adjust themselves automatically. We'll all be busier than a dog trying to bury a bone on a marble floor—no unemployment; everything lovely. The trouble with a dog, endeavoring to bury a bone on a marble floor, is that he must ultimately realize that he isn't actually accomplishing anything.

Now, what's being accomplished, in a constructive way, by an industry engaged in the production of war supplies? Such so-called production is in a class with leaf-raking. There's a modicum of use in that, perhaps. Leaves, left on the ground, are a nuisance. They may dry up, get an accidental burning match tossed among them and start a mean fire. But, generally speaking, leaf-raking is what's referred to by Socialists as "made work." It's provided mainly just to give somebody a job—of no particular value. It's a dote, in effect.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

COMMITTEE BLEW UP

WASHINGTON—It has been carefully hushed up inside the State Department, but recently a distinguished group of citizens on the President's Advisory Committee for Political Refugees almost resigned and blew the lid off the appeasement group among career diplomats. The incident is important because it indicates that the old State Department appeasement clique still is functioning right under the nose of Cordell Hull.

The President's refugee committee is headed by James G. McDonald, who handled the refugee problem for the League of Nations, and includes Archbishop Joseph F. Rummel of New Orleans; editor Hamilton Fish Armstrong; George Warren; Basil Harris, formerly of United States Lines; Prof. Joseph P. Chamberlain of Columbia; and Rev. Samuel Cavert of the World Alliance for International Friendship. It was appointed shortly after the fall of France at the suggestion of far-sighted Sumner Welles, who felt that the plight of German, Czech, Jewish and Catholic refugees in France should be handled through a central agency.

The committee immediately swung into action and after carefully investigating a long list of refugees, finally recommended that 651 professors, churchmen and former government officials be admitted to the United States. This was two and one half months ago.

These names also were checked by the Justice Department, which approved them and sent the list to the State Department. After that nothing happened. Two and one half months passed and only fifteen refugees recommended by the President's committee were admitted to the United States.

ROOSEVELT ISSUES VISAS

Two and a half months was a long time to delay when many of the refugees were in imminent danger of being removed from France to Germany. So the committee began to ask questions as to what had happened at the State Department. Specifically, they asked questions of Breckinridge Long, Assistant Secretary of State, in charge of passport visas. In fact, they made life so miserable for the placid Mr. Long that Long even complained to the President that he had appointed a committee of trouble-makers.

At this point Mr. McDonald and other members of his committee stormed down to Washington with fire in their eyes and demanded that matters be straightened out. Accordingly, Roosevelt asked Under Secretary of State Welles and Solicitor General Biddle to investigate. They held a meeting with irate committee members and Breckinridge Long, at which Welles was dumbfounded at the State Department's sabotage of the Refugee Committee.

"But, Breck," he said, addressing the Assistant Secretary of State, "only fifteen

Quints Lose Tonsils

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● The removal of all of the Quints ten tonsils at one stroke of the pen—I mean sweep of the scalpel—has caused a good deal of speculation and questioning in medical circles. The conservative in the profession for years have been contending that tonsils in young children should not be removed just because they exist.

When, then, the Dionne quintuplets each had a tonsillectomy it raised some natural inquisitiveness. As one doctor wrote, "Those of us who try to protect the public from needless operations find it difficult to explain why such perfectly reared children should all at the same time have tonsils so diseased that they had to be removed."

The American Medical Association felt the question was important enough to take to headquarters and sent it to Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, the Quints' famous doctor, who replied as follows (abstracted):

Dr. Dafoe's Reply

"First of all, let me make clear that I am opposed to the removal of tonsils when it is not necessary. In the case of the Dionne children they had been subject to repeated attacks of tonsillitis. A professor of diseases of children at Toronto University examined them and reported: 'The tonsils and adenoids are in a chronic state of inflammation, with enlargement of the lymph-nodes in the neck—the latter is palpable evidence that the infection from the tonsils is spreading and at any time may get into the whole system.' After this report it would have been criminal to delay further. As for the surprise expressed at the infection appearing in all five at the same time, I find it difficult to understand. I, on the contrary, would have been surprised if the infection had occurred only in part of the set. This is an identical set, living in an identical environment. The appearance of a disorder in one individual and its failure to appear in others when no difference of heredity or environment exists would be surprising, indeed, to me."

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

A collection of antique books, 12 of which were loaned by Mrs. Glenn I. Nickerson, South Court Street, were on display in a case in the front hall of the Circleville Public Library.

Mrs. William Foresman, South Scioto Street, and Mrs. Howard B. Moore, South Court Street, were in Bristol, Va., over the week end where they visited Mrs. Moore's daughter, Miss Charlotte, a student at Virginia Intermont College.

A valuable black bird dog, owned by Orin W. Dreisbach, Kingston Pike, was stolen, according to a report to the sheriff's department by a tenant on the farm.

10 YEARS AGO

Miss Gwendolyn Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Lewis of Thurman, exchanged marriage vows with Mr. William E. Defenbaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Defenbaugh of Tarleton, the informal wedding being at the home of the bride's parents. Both Mr. and Mrs. Defenbaugh were former Ohio State University students.

Miss Mary D. Karshner, Pickaway Township, received her elementary school life certificate from the state board of education. She was a graduate of Ohio University, Athens, and for the preceding eight years, had been a successful teacher in the Ross County schools.

It was announced that James G. Dunton, Circleville's most famous author, had written a new book, "The Counterfeit Wife," which had just been put on sale.

25 YEARS AGO

Samuel W. Ulm, Williamsport, received a letter from his daughter, Miss Bessie, saying that she had been detained about three weeks at Panama by slides in the great canal. Miss Ulm, a graduate nurse of the Woman's Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa., was on a vacation trip.

The marriage of Miss Callie Camp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Camp, Bainbridge, to Mr. Earl Lutz Kibler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Kibler, was quietly solemnized at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Albert Crist, North Pickaway Street. The Rev. A. L. Brokaw officiated.

About 3,000 people heard William Jennings Bryan in a speech for Statewide prohibition at Memorial Hall.

SYNOPSIS

READ THIS FIRST:
FOLLOWING a strange accidental meeting with VANCE HEALEY, noted radio sports announcer, whom she rescued from a night club when he became intoxicated and got into trouble, KIT REILLY, attractive young songstress, is given an opportunity by Healey for an audition in the Semblers contest. Given the moral support of her room-mate and partner, FRANK LE MAZE, Kit makes her bid for the $5,000 prize and the one-year radio contract.

CHAPTER NINE

THE WEATHERMAN had promised a white Thanksgiving. His prediction had been partially correct, but now, on the later afternoon of the holiday eve, the snowy crystals were turning to drizzling rain. Kit Reilly, stuffing a padding of newspapers under the window cracks with a nail file to keep out the gusts of damp, penetrating cold, contemplated the view with an answering grayness of spirit.

"Hey, Kit! Help!"

Kit flew to the door of the room she shared with Fran and flung it open.

Fran had collapsed on the top step. Her hat was on the back of her head and an over-size market basket was clasped in her arms.

Kit reached down for the basket and her eyes popped wide. "What have you got here?" she demanded.

Fran gasped, "I'm a Greek bearing gifts. Helen of Troy Popoloupolis herself! Gimme a hand! I'll give you the details later."

Kit pretended to swoon. "Do I see the noble bird itself? Not turkey?"

"You ain't seen the half of it." Fran pushed her into the apartment.

"Is this our lucky day?" she wanted to know. "I drop in to see Jake Spivak and he asks me do we want to do a show tonight at the Boys 179th Street Athletic and Uplift club for ten bucks and I . . ."

Kit's face fell. "And you got an advance and spent it all on food?" she wailed.

"I did not! Listen. So I stop at Barbieri's Grill to look up the address of this joint and what do I see? I see a card of chances. For ten cents you stick a little stick into one of the holes and maybe a prize comes out. So it does! What comes out? First prize for Fran, and this is it! Here it is! Look!"

They both looked long and rapturously at the overflowing contents of the basket.

Kit shook her head. "If it were hamburger I could believe it. But not that nectar and ambrosia."

"Nectar and am . . . nothing! Them's turnips and cranberries and what have you. And please don't ever mention hamburger to me again."

Kit didn't even want to speak of it again, not after eating it for three weeks and having to be glad to get that.

Fran's hopeful prediction some months before, that the Dancing Dolls would land a job in an up-town night club, had met with proof that they could not. They'd worked for ten weeks, for three weeks, for two nights, wherever they could get a job, and then the limited circuit of obscure entertainment palaces was exhausted.

Kit's practical mind returned to the other good news Fran brought. "Did you say we get ten dollars for a show tonight?"

Fran nodded. "I tried to pry Jake loose from a little more, but it was no go. . . . Guess we'd better do the Southern Belles. Our other costumes are all worn out."

"Hitch up the iron, Fran, and I'll press them."

"Sure, honey. Then I'll run down and see if Mrs. Pulaski'll let us roast this baby in her oven. . . . Fourteen pounds of heaven, darling. Maybe our luck's changing today. I feel hopeful."

"Fourteen pounds? We'll be eating it for weeks. Maybe we'll even be glad to have hamburger again." Kit said from where she was trying to pull a suit box out from under the couch that served as their bed.

"And how we'll eat it for weeks." Fran agreed happily. "There's a lot you can do with turkey. There's hot turkey and cold turkey, turkey pie and turkey salad, not to mention cutlets and soup and . . ."

Fran had collapsed on the top step, an over-sized market basket in her arms.

"Oh, stop! You know I yearn for variety."

"You and your variety!" Fran ducked the pillow Kit threw at her.

Forty city blocks away, Nana Harris, who had eaten less than hamburger on many a holiday, groped for the chaste handles of her shower and called through the curtains to her maid, "If I've got an evening dress that covers more than half of me, lay it out, Minnie."

Minnie grinned and said, "Ya'as ma'am. The black velvet's got sleeves anyhow."

Nana surrounded herself with a cloud of scented powder and laughed delightedly, delighted with living, with what she'd done that day.

In the slipper cabinet back of Minnie, under the lucky shoes in which she'd tapped her way to the front line of the chorus, there were papers to show that Nana Harris, who had been one of the fourteen children of a coal miner, had that day established for herself a trust fund of a quarter of a million dollars.

Minnie brought her a dressing gown that was both rough and soft. It had been warmed and it felt cozy next to her skin. She wriggled her feet into the fur-lined slippers Minnie held for her. How good the world was this night, this little warm, luxurious world within her walls. Outside it was damp and cold as she well knew.

"God bless Gemini," she said.

"Do you know who Gemini is, Minnie?"

"Caint say I remembers, Miz Harris."

"Gemini, my astrologist says, is the planet that controls the air."

"Then he better git busy and do some controllin' tonight. This air ain't no good for a singer."

Nina laughed and wriggled into her girdle. "God and Gemini and the radio have been very good to me and I have no complaints, Minnie. Hand me my . . ."

The buzz of the door bell cut off her speech. "Run along, Minnie. That would be Mr. Balch."

When she was dressed and came into her living room, Howard Balch was standing in front of the crackling fire in the hearth, one of her flowers in his smart but shabby buttonhole and a highball glass in his hand.

"Hello, darling," she said, kissing him affectionately. "Have a nice day at the office? You look rather tired."

He scowled. "Wench, I suspect your soft tricks . . . and the motive for your hasty summons. What are you up to?"

"Twelve years!" she said sadly. "And you still suspect me. Give me a cocktail and I'll show you my cards and then we'll have an early dinner . . . and a very good one."

"It always is. Do you suppose I'm in love with you or your cook?"

"There's never been any doubt in my mind. It's cook, of course. And she's done luscious things for tonight. . . . Thank you," taking the mild cocktail he always made for her. "A rare steak to put you in a mellow mood."

"Lord, I'll need it. These audition broadcasts of Semblers put me in a foul state of mind."

"Don't use such dreadful language," she purred. "Sit down here beside me."

He sat down warily. "Here it comes," he said. "Shoot!"

"Oh, you do see through me. Darling, I've come to an important decision and I want you to pat me on the back—if your hand is warmer than I am—and tell me I'm doing the right thing."

"And what devilry are you up to?"

"It isn't devilry, Howard. I've just discovered that I'm a tired, old gal and fed to the teeth. I'm about to abdicate and give the throne to someone else. I've been off the stage now for two weeks for the first time in eight years and it's grand to be myself for a change. I feel different inside. Look at me!"

He looked at her and said, "Well, what happens next?"

She thought that was for him to tell her, but he said nothing, so she said, "I'll tell you later."

Gordon-Gussacoff Vows Read At Bride's Home

Rabbi Hirschsprung
Officiates At Wedding

Under a canopy beautifully decorated with white gladioli, ferns and pompons, Miss Mary Gussacoff and Mr. Leon Gordon were married at 5:30 p. m. Sunday in the living room of her parent's home, 931 Linwood Avenue, Columbus. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Gussacoff.

Members of the immediate families were present for the ceremony performed by Rabbi M. Hirschsprung, assisted by Cantor Gellman.

A two-piece sheer wool dress of gold and brown was chosen by the bride for her wedding. With it she used brown accessories and carried an ivory Bible with a single orchid from which fell a shower of talisman rose buds.

Miss Ida Gussacoff as maid of honor for her sister wore sheer aqua wool with matching accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of talisman roses.

Mr. Julius Gordon was best man for his brother.

Both bride and bridegroom are former students of Ohio State University. Miss Gussacoff, until her marriage, being an employee of a Columbus department store.

After a trip to New York City, Mr. Gordon and his bride will reside in Circleville at 720 North Court Street. He is the son of Mr. H. M. Gordon of East Mound Street and the late Mrs. Gordon, and is associated with his father in business.

Following the ceremony, dinner was served to 70 relatives and guests at the Gussacoff home, the bride's mother receiving in a wine-colored gown complemented with a lovely orchid corsage.

Present from Circleville were Mr. H. M. Gordon and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gordon. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Segal, Chillicothe, and Mr. S. Robert Gordon of Hillsboro were other guests from a distance.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, October 28
MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a memorable day, with swift-moving and breath-taking events. This may eventuate in the emotional, romantic, or social life or may prove devastating or drastic in more material affairs. In any case be ready for uprooting, exciting and thrilling experiences, likely to culminate in unexpected success and a stabilization of the affairs, generally.

Those whose birthday it is may be surprised by a year of sudden and unforeseen events, in which a radical spading up or disintegration may supply many thrills and dynamic adventures, and culminating in sound and progressive denouements, if wisely managed. This may occur in the emotional or romantic life or in business of an unusual but constructive nature. But in all keep poised and constrained.

A child born on this day should be unusually ingenious and versatile, with creative ability of a high order, either in art, science, romantic literature. Romance and adventure loom large in its social and professional career.

5,620 THRILLED AS BULLS TAKE 17 TO 7 JOUST

COLUMBUS, Oct. 28—The Columbus Bulls were firmly entrenched in the top spot of the American Professional Football League today after drubbing the Cincinnati Bengals, 17 to 7, aided by a 94-yard touchdown spring by Bob Davis.

The Bulls came from behind to score 14 points in the last quarter to the delight of 5,620 partisan fans. Nels Peterson, who also booted a three-pointer from the field, took a Davis pass for 30 yards and the other Columbus score.

Cincinnati's counter came on a 50-yard aerial heave by Shu to Blackaby, who took the ball on the five and went over standing up.

The win enabled the Bulls, who have won five and lost one in league play, to extend their winning streak against all comers to seven straight.

'CATS, GOPHERS MEET IN VITAL TILT SATURDAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 28—It begins to look as though the business of settling the 1940 Western Conference football championship will get under way at Evanston this Saturday, when unbeaten and untied Minnesota meets unbeaten and untied Northwestern.

A week later, Minnesota meets Michigan, likewise unbeaten and untied and with whom Northwestern and Minnesota share the Big Ten lead as of today. And then, a week further along, Northwestern tackles the Wolverines — by which time it ought to be quite definite as to who's who in the present dizzy race.

Amid a confusion of results elsewhere in the nation over the week end which brought headaches to the "experts" and joy to sponsors of football pools, the conference eleven ran rather true to form.

About the only result that might be classed as an upset was Wisconsin's 14 to 13 win over Purdue, and in the light of the jinx the Badgers have always held over the Boilermakers, this wasn't so surprising.

Up at Evanston, an upset was in the making for 50 minutes, but The Wildcats roused themselves from their sluggishness long enough to take advantage of a couple of breaks to rout a slumbering Indiana team, 20-7. Like Purdue, the Hoosiers had all the edge in statistics, but not in payoff points.

The heavy play over the week end finished with but five undefeated and untied teams in the state. Besides Kent State and Heidelberg, this list includes Wittenberg's Lutherans, Oberlin and Wilberforce, all of whom marked up victories over out-of-state competition. Wittenberg found Lawrence Tech, of Detroit, easy and coasted to a 20-0 win; Oberlin put on a dazzling last half rally to edge Swarthmore, 14-13 for its fourth win in a row from out-of-state teams while Wilberforce likewise turned its fourth consecutive victory, this time whipping Lane, 23-7.

Case was blasted from the ranks of the undefeated by a revived Carnegie Tech eleven which, though beaten 61-0 the week before by Notre Dame—show class "in its own class" by downing the Case team, 14-0. It was Case's first loss in five games.

Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio University fought to a scoreless tie before a homecoming crowd at Delaware. Although neither team has been beaten, Ohio University has two ties marked against its record while the Battling Bishops have three deadlocks—all scoreless ties.

Davy Burns, a Scotchman, owned a farm where the White House and Washington's Monument now stand. George Washington is said to have had a good deal of difficulty in persuading Burns to sell.

Bucks Beaten Soundly; Snavelly's Acts Played

By Larry Newman

COLUMBUS, Oct. 28 — Ohio State University's thrice-vanquished football eleven returned home silent today although its coaching staff was making lots of noise, charging Cornell's Carl Snavelly with "lack of ethics and poor sportsmanship."

The Buckeye staff, including Athletic Director L. W. St. John and Coach Francis Schmidt, declared that Snavelly "called practically every offensive play from the bench" as the Big Red powerhouse was making mince-meat of the Ohio eleven to the tune of 21 to 7 in Schoellkopf Stadium above Cayuga Lake Saturday afternoon.

"It was a crime," Schmidt said, "but so 'amateurish' that we had to laugh. We finally got to the place where we could just about call practically every play."

According to St. John, Snavelly used a light-colored cylinder to tip off his signal-caller. Besides that he crossed his legs and swung one foot when he wanted a kick. (Which wasn't necessary often.)

However, both Schmidt and St. John later declared that Cornell had a great team and said they did not believe the bench signals had any effect on the final score.

The Buck coaches wouldn't have had to say that. The Cornell team proved it in four quarters of magnificent football before 34,000 delirious fans who saw a repetition of the famous battle of Columbus in 1939. After Capt. Jimmy Langhurst had sparked an 89-yard Ohio State touchdown drive in the first period, Cornell took over the show early in the second stanza and held the stage throughout the remainder of the game.

The Big Red tied it up in the second quarter when Hal McCullough flicked a pass to Jim Schmuck for the first score to tie the count at 7-all at the halftime.

After battering at the touchdown gates on several occasions in the third quarter, the Cornellians went to work in the closing period with a vengeance. If Snavelly called all the plays in that quarter, he's the best quarterback "in the game" today.

Cornell tallied on the first play of the payoff session when Lou Bufalino followed four-man interference through a huge gap in the Buckeye line for six yards and the winning touchdown. However, not content to win by so narrow a margin, the really great eastern eleven sent Bufalino roaring down the field again for still another tally. All-America Nick Drahes place-kicked all three points.

Three of Cornell's mainstays were in there for the full 60 minutes—Drahes, Matuszczak and Finneran. Don Scott and Claude White went all the way for the Scarlet.

KENT STATE ON TOP IN OHIO'S COLLEGE FIELD

COLUMBUS, Oct. 28—Kent State's Golden Flashes continued to pace the Ohio Collegiate gridiron race today boasting a record of six consecutive victories without a defeat. Besides leading the gridiron pack, the Flashes also saw its Mickey Mittiga go into a tie for the state scoring leadership at 48 points as the Kent Staters coasted to a 31 to 7 victory over Washington and Jefferson.

Mittiga scored three touchdowns to the Fenton Wolfe, of Heidelberg, who tallied twice as the Tri-Color eleven was keeping pace in the state race with an 18-7 victory over winless Mt. Union. It was Heidelberg's fifth straight win, all in Ohio Conference play.

The heavy play over the week end finished with but five undefeated and untied teams in the state. Besides Kent State and Heidelberg, this list includes Wittenberg's Lutherans, Oberlin and Wilberforce, all of whom marked up victories over out-of-state competition. Wittenberg found Lawrence Tech, of Detroit, easy and coasted to a 20-0 win; Oberlin put on a dazzling last half rally to edge Swarthmore, 14-13 for its fourth win in a row from out-of-state teams while Wilberforce likewise turned its fourth consecutive victory, this time whipping Lane, 23-7.

Davy Burns, a Scotchman, owned a farm where the White House and Washington's Monument now stand. George Washington is said to have had a good deal of difficulty in persuading Burns to sell.

ANOTHER C. A. C. DRILL PLANNED WEDNESDAY EVE

Another practice is planned Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. in the Athletic Club gymnasium for athletes who wish to play basketball this season with the Circleville Athletic Club team. John Heiskell, in charge of the aggregation, said Monday that not a single position is clinched and that any athlete who wishes may try out.

At Sunday's initial get together about a dozen candidates appeared, among them being Harold Smith and Whitey Davis, forwards on the Circleville High team last year; Snapper Ankrom, Lawrence Reid, Wimpy Walden, Barney Reese, Carl Purcell, Ed Reichelderfer and others.

A meeting of girls interested in forming a team will be held at 7:30 Wednesday in the clubrooms. Unless interest is shown at this meeting, plans to form a girls' team will be abandoned, Heiskell said.

REPUBLICAN ATTENTION CENTERS ON WILLKIE ADDRESS AT JACKSON

COUNTY TO SEND BUSES AND CARS IN MOTORCADE

Democrats Hope To Fill Memorial Hall For Senator's Talk

ARKANSAS MAN BOOKED

President To Speak From Cleveland Saturday In Important Meeting

The last full week of campaigning prior to the November 5 election found Pickaway County politicians, Democratic and Republican alike, mapping intensive activities through which they hope to receive support at the polls.

Two outstanding gatherings are being planned, the first to be Tuesday when Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, comes to Jackson to address a gathering that Republican leaders say will number 100,000 or more persons.

The Pickaway County Republican organization is taking steps to send a large delegation to Jackson. Two buses will be filled and numerous automobiles will join in a motorcade scheduled to leave Circleville at 9 a. m. Tuesday for Chillicothe where it will join with the Ross County delegation. Tom A. Remick, Republican chairman, said Monday that there is no way of learning how many will be present from Pickaway County since a large number of the motorists will go directly to Jackson.

A tri-county Republican meeting will be held Friday at 7 p. m. in Adelphi with G.O.P. followers from Pickaway, Ross and Hocking Counties to participate. Ray W. Davis of Circleville, nominee for congress, will speak.

Senator Booked

Democrats are ballyhooing a big meeting to staged Thursday evening in Memorial Hall when United States Senator John Miller of Arkansas speaks. The meeting will be the biggest of the campaign for the Democratic organization, and a capacity crowd is expected to fill the hall.

Clarence H. Knisley, state treasurer and Democratic candidate for reelection, will speak at a Democratic rally in Ashville Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the school building. O. P. Van Schoik, of the state auditor's office, will also be present.

Meanwhile polls and predictions of political experts indicated that neither the Republicans or Democrats felt certain into which column the state's 26 electoral votes would be dropped on election day. GOP leaders predicted optimistically that Willkie's fourth and last campaign visit would "cinch" the Ohio vote. Democrats likewise felt certain that when the President says "My Friends" in Cleveland Saturday he will win over the Ohio voters for the third time.

Nationally prominent speakers will augment the presidential contenders in the effort to swing "on defense" voters. The list included:

Speeches Arranged

For the GOP ticket: U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft speaks at Troy today, Youngstown tomorrow, East Liverpool Wednesday, Cleveland Thursday, Ashland Friday and Canton Saturday; U. S. Senator John A. Danaher of Conn. talks in Cincinnati today, Columbus tomorrow and Toledo Wednesday.

Meanwhile Governor John W. Bricker, Republican seeking a second term, and former Gov. Martin L. Davey, Democratic nominee, squared off for their final local bouts in the leading state contest. Both are to make their weekly campaign broadcasts tonight following personal appearances throughout the state. The

AN "Eagle Squadron" of 34 American pilots has been formed and is ready to set out for England to battle German invading planes. Leader of the "Eagles" is William E. G. Taylor, 35, above, a first lieutenant in the Marine Corps reserve.

JOE LOUIS TAKES STUMP: CAMPAIGNS FOR WILLKIE

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis today prepared to go barnstorming around the country—but this time as a political speaker.

Louis, for whom a few words is usually a long address, will make eight speeches in behalf of Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee. He is scheduled to speak in Philadelphia, Detroit, St. Louis, New York, Newark, Cleveland, Chicago and Baltimore.

BABY DROWNS IN POOL

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 28—Coroner Austin Richards today returned a verdict of accidental death in the drowning of the one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kline in a pool at their nearby New Carlisle home.

gubernatorial opponents will wind up their campaigns with radio talks next Monday night.

Mayor Harold H. Burton, of Cleveland, GOP nominee for U. S. senator, and his Democratic opponent, John McSweeney of Wooster, also were to wind up their vigorous campaigns with personal appearances throughout the state.

Candidates for congressional posts and less important state and county offices brought up the rear, basking in the light reflected by the presidential and gubernatorial candidates.

Aboard Willkie Train En Route LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 28—Radiating confidence, certain of his election, Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential candidate, today began the last full week of his spectacular campaign for the presidency with a three-state schedule of speeches.

Not in many years has a presidential candidate visited so many states, talked to so many persons as has Willkie. That was his plan at the beginning of this campaign and that still is his plan as the campaign nears its end.

Willkie estimates that he has talked to more than 5,000,000 persons and has seen and been seen by more than twice that number. He knows that not all of them were voters or will vote for him but he is confident also that many who came out to hear him were not supporters originally but left as endorsers.

Today the candidate returned to Illinois to speak at Bloomington, Champaign and Danville. Then he was to visit Indianapolis—40 miles from Rushville from where he left to open his campaign on September 12—then Columbus, Ind., and finally Louisville, Ky., where he was scheduled for a night broadcast and a radio speech.

LUTHER LEAGUE GROUPS GATHER

Ned Dresbach Elected To Lead Federation For Another Year

The Hocking and Scioto Valley Federation of Luther Leagues met at the Trinity Lutheran Parish House Sunday at 2:30 p. m. for its 36th semi-annual convention, and reelected Ned Dresbach, 221 Watt Street, as its president.

Leagues represented at the meeting included those of Groveport, Canal Winchester, Logan, St. Paul, Marcy, Ashville, Lockbourne and Circleville. During the business session representatives of the federation voted to include Lancaster in the league. Other officers elected included James Rush, Canal Winchester, first vice-president; Roy Kuhlwein, Lockbourne, second vice-president; Margie Peters, Ashville, secretary and Joseph Rohr, Ashville, treasurer.

Plans for the state convention to be held at Alexandria, Licking County in November, were discussed. Buses may be chartered to take members of the federation to the state meeting.

More than 100 persons were served at the 5 o'clock young people's banquet, under the direction of Mrs. Willard Dudson, Jackson Township. Games and contests followed, under the direction of Josephine Wolfe, Jackson Township.

The Rev. R. E. Galladay, second vice-president of the American Lutheran Church and pastor of the Grace Lutheran Church, Columbus, was principal speaker, using as his subject "Builders of The Temple Beautiful." Officers estimated that 250 young people attended the meeting.

HERBERT TELLS VOTERS HOW TO MARK BALLOTS

COLUMBUS, Oct. 28—It will be permissible to scratch your state-county ballot in next Tuesday's election, but an attempt to scratch a presidential ballot will result in the loss of the presidential vote, Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert warned today.

Herbert emphasized that his recent ruling prohibiting scratching a ballot had to do only with presidential ballots. The voter has the right to mark a cross in the circle at the top of a party column on the state-county ballot and then vote for certain candidates in the opposition column, Herbert said.

However, he added, it would nullify the decision of the supreme court if such a practice would be permitted on the presidential sheet, as it would be impossible to determine the wish of a voter who placed a cross in the circle at the top of one column and then voted for the individual candidates in the other.

Washington Merry-Go Round

refugees admitted in two and a half months, out of 651? How do you explain that?"

Mr. Breckenridge Long fidgeted and sputtered. He had no explanation.

In the end, Roosevelt assured his committee that from now on their recommendations would be acted upon without two and a half months' delay.

BRITISH CHILDREN

Whether this happens, or not, remains to be seen. For last summer, when Mrs. Roosevelt was helping to raise money for the care of British refugee children, Mrs. Warren, Chief of the State Department's Visa Division, insisted that temporary visitors' visas could not be given the children, but could not be given the children, only immigration quota visas which sometimes take months to procure. Meanwhile he permitted temporary visas to Nazi business men, such as Dr. Gerhard Westrick.

Mrs. Roosevelt, however, strongly urged a change in this ruling in favor of the children, who she argued were temporary visitors and her husband promised that this would be done. But as in the recent case of the political refugees, nothing happened.

Finally Mrs. Roosevelt phoned her husband to report the State Department's inertia. He assured her that the State Department was sure to act later in the day. But it did not act, and Mrs. Roosevelt phoned her husband again in the afternoon, and again later in the day. Finally on the fourth call, with still no action taken, the President picked up the phone and called a minor State Department official.

Later Mrs. Roosevelt told this story to a group of close friends, one of whom commented:

"The State Department has come to a sad state of affairs when the President of the United States can't call up his Secretary of State and say, 'I would like to have this and thus done,' but instead has to call up a minor official in the State Department."

NOTE—Visa Chief Avra Warren, who denied visitors' visas to British refugee children, did not deny them to 70 Czech shoe workers for the Bata shoe factory in Maryland, whom the Justice Department later deported, charging that the company had been linked up economically with Hitler.

BURMA ROAD

Guns and munitions aren't the only supplies which will pass over the reopened Burma Road. A large shipment of desperately needed medical supplies, purchased by the American Red Cross with the assistance of dollar-a-year-men from Procurement Division and Defense Commission, will pass over the highway—if Japanese bombers don't interfere.

A shipload of such supplies has sailed from New York for Rangoon, Burma, where they will be transhipped over the famous road to Chungking, capital of the embattled Chinese Republic. Included in the shipment are 70 tons of boric acid, 20,000 tins of ether and 70,000 pounds of antiseptic cotton. Red Cross officials chose Rangoon because other ports are under Japanese domination.

CAMPAIGN SIDELIGHTS

REPS: Some GOP leaders in California may be soft-pedaling on Herbert Hoover, but not National Chairman Joe Martin. Says he in "The Republican," lively GOP monthly: "Mr. Willkie has the pledge of the enthusiastic backing and aid of Herbert Hoover, last Republican and only living former President of the United States. . . . Here, assuredly, is cause for confidence in the outcome of the November election, but there are other and equally potent straws in the wind."

DEMS: Mrs. Roosevelt's opinion of what is the chief issue of the campaign, written for "The Democratic Digest": "Do the people of the United States of America want a partnership in which the government exerts an influence as strong as either that of capital or labor, or do they want a government which is comparatively weak and over which other interests dominate? This . . . is probably fundamentally the most important question before us today."

GERMAN TORPEDOES SEND LUXURY LINER TO BOTTOM

BERLIN, Oct. 28—A German submarine early this morning sank the flaming British luxury liner Empress of Britain with two torpedoes, an official announcement said today.

The 42,348-ton vessel had been floating off the northern coast of Ireland since Saturday, when it was bombed and wrecked by German planes which attacked it within the "German blockade zone," setting the ship on fire, it was claimed.

About 16,000,000 thunderstorms occur annually throughout the world.

140 CANADIANS LOST IN OCEAN

Destroyer Sinks, Ottawa Reports; Boat Hits Merchant Ship

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 28—The loss of the Canadian destroyer Margaree with a possible toll of 140 lives was announced today by naval service headquarters.

It was believed only 31 of the total complement of 171 officers and men were saved, according to the announcement, which reported the Margaree collided with a large merchant ship in the North Atlantic submarine zone during the night of October 22.

The major proportion of the Margaree's crew were Canadians. The loss was the largest Canada has yet sustained in any of her military or naval forces at one time during the present war.

3 MILL LEVY

HERE IS THE FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE CITY OF CIRCLEVILLE IN 1940-1941

During 1940 the City received 4.50 mills or about $37,714 from real estate tax for general operating expenses. The city will end the year owing about $10,000 to Pickaway County for relief and owing about $4,000 to the electric light company for an old street lighting bill, a total of $14,000 in debt.

There are no possible sources of revenue to pay these bills and operate other than for the citizens to vote an additional amount through taxes. All delinquent tax bonds have been exhausted and the Tax Commission has informed the City that there are no other available means of procuring financial aid.

During 1941 the City will receive 3.20 mills or about $26,819 from real estate taxes for general operating expenses — $10,895 less than in 1940—as a result of more money being required by the city schools. This means that the end of 1941 will find the city almost $35,000 in debt—A CRITICAL SITUATION.

Even if the 3 mill levy is passed, the city will be approximately $10,000 in debt at the end of 1941 and this deficit can only be taken care of by drastic economies in the operation of city government.

HERE ARE THE FACTS FOR 1941 IF THE 3 MILL LEVY DOES NOT PASS

If this levy does not pass it will be necessary to turn out all or part of the street lights, turn out part of the traffic lights, turn off many of the fire hydrants, reduce the personnel of the fire department, which even now is below state requirements and reduce the personnel of the police and service departments.

This will result in our streets not being properly repaired, traffic laws not adequately enforced and the city not properly policed. Fire insurance rates will increase to almost the amount that the 3 mill levy will cost the property owners and the city will still be unprotected. The most deserving of unfortunates will be unable to obtain aid from the city officials.

Even with the additional 3 mills, property owners in Circleville will be paying far less taxes than they paid under the 15 mill limitation and will still be one of the lowest taxed cities it's size in the State of Ohio . . . and will be paying less taxes than the property owners in most villages in Pickaway County.
